Aylin & Aura,

the EBM AIRLESS that look like Boston bottles, help to reach high standards of baby skincare and hair care products.

While developing organic, herbal, chemical-free products for baby skin care and hair care, the packaging must meet the strict standards to protect naturally derived ingredients.

Unlike synthetic materials, the botanical mix is better kept in compatible packaging that prevents oxidation and is best dispensed with metered dosage to avoid unnecessary waste and pump out the last bit, leaving nearly nothing.

And it leads to EBM AIRLESS.

Light, running liquids

before

Massage oils, bathing oils, or cleansers of light textures packaged in bottles with average pumps tend to have the liquids dripping after usage.

from now on

Change to EBM AIRLESS to have airless pumps that work well with light-textured liquids without mishaps.

Spray at any angle

before

Sting-free relief spray or detangling spray for kids are packaged in bottles with sprayers and dip tubes limited to the up-right usage.

from now on

Change to EBM AIRLESS to have dip-tube-free airless sprayers to enable 360° upside-down usage.

High viscosity

before

Diaper rash creams or ointments have a thick, butter-like texture and are mostly packaged in tubes or jars with no control for the dosage.

from now on

Change to EBM AIRLESS to have airless pumps that work well with super thick, viscous balm or ointment with measurable dosage.
